

CONSTITUTION OF THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF NIGERIA, 1999 (SIXTH ALTERATION) BILL, 2026

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

This Bill alters the Constitution of the Federal Republic of Nigeria, 1999, to create a constitutional pathway for establishing State Police Services, subject to the Constitution and to an Act of the National Assembly prescribing national minimum policing standards.

The Bill preserves the Federal Police Service as the default police service in any State until a State Police Service is lawfully established and certified operational, and preserves the continuing federal policing role in every State and in the Federal Capital Territory, Abuja.

The Bill establishes constitutional guardrails for civilian control, human rights, national minimum standards, independent police service commissions, intergovernmental cooperation, criminal information systems, firearms control, and exceptional federal intervention in State policing in cases of breakdown, serious incapacity, national security threat, or egregious abuse.

The Bill leaves the detailed organisation, procedures, operational control, certification, complaints mechanisms, grants, and implementation arrangements to subsequent Acts of the National Assembly and, where applicable, to the Laws of the Houses of Assembly of States.

“Federal and State Police Services

214. (1) There shall be a police service for the Federation to be known as the Federal Police Service.
- (2) There shall be established for each State of the Federation a State Police Service subject to this Constitution and Act of the National Assembly.
- (3) No State Police Service shall commence operational policing unless it has been established by a Law of the House of Assembly of the State and certified as meeting national minimum standards in the manner prescribed by an Act of the National Assembly.
- (4) Unless and until a State Police Service commences operational policing under subsection (3) of this section, the Federal Police Service shall continue to perform policing functions in that State, and after such commencement, the Federal Police Service shall continue to perform federal policing functions and may provide assistance to the State Police Service in accordance with law.
- (5) The Federal Police Service shall be responsible for federal policing functions, including the enforcement of laws of the Federation, policing of the Federal Capital Territory, Abuja, protection of federal institutions and assets, and policing matters with inter-State, international, organised crime, terrorism, cybercrime, arms-trafficking, border-security, national-security or other federal dimensions as may be prescribed by an Act of the National Assembly.
- (6) A State Police Service shall, within the State for which it is established, be responsible for the enforcement of laws of the State, the maintenance of public safety and public order, the prevention and detection of offences within its policing competence, the protection of life and property, and such local policing functions as may be prescribed by a Law of the House of Assembly of the State, subject to this Constitution and national minimum standards prescribed by an Act of the National Assembly.
- (7) A State Police Service shall not exercise police powers outside the State for which it is established except as authorised by an Act of the National Assembly.
- (8) No police service, police organisation or armed body exercising police powers shall be established for the Federation, a State, a Local Government Area or any part thereof except in accordance with this Constitution and laws made pursuant to it, but nothing in this subsection shall prevent the establishment by law of unarmed traffic, emergency management, environmental, neighbourhood safety or community support services that do not exercise police powers.

- (9) The Federal Police Service and every State Police Service shall cooperate, exchange information and provide mutual assistance in the manner prescribed by an Act of the National Assembly.
- (10) The Federal Police Service may temporarily intervene in the internal security affairs of a State and may, to the extent necessary, assume specified operational responsibility, including temporary operational command of a State Police Service or any part thereof, only where —
 - (a) there is an actual or imminent breakdown of public order or public safety which the State Police Service is unable or unwilling to contain;
 - (b) the Governor of the State requests federal intervention;
 - (c) the State Police Service is unable to function by reason of serious administrative, financial, operational or other incapacity and that incapacity creates an actual or imminent threat to public safety, public order, the enforcement of this Constitution or the protection of life and property;
 - (d) there is substantial evidence that the State Police Service is being used for egregious or systematic violation of fundamental rights, partisan or electoral intimidation, ethnic, religious or sectional persecution, or unlawful obstruction of this Constitution, an Act of the National Assembly, a Law of the State House of Assembly or an order of a court; or
 - (e) the situation presents a substantial threat to national security, the sovereignty or integrity of the Federation, or public safety across State boundaries.
- (11) An intervention under subsection (10) of this section shall be temporary, necessary, proportionate and limited to the territory, functions and period required to address the breakdown, incapacity, abuse or threat.
- (12) An intervention under subsection (10) of this section shall be authorised in writing by the President and shall state the grounds, territory, functions and duration of the intervention, and notice of the intervention shall be given to the Governor of the State, the Speaker of the House of Assembly of the State, the National Police Council and the National Assembly within forty-eight hours of the start of any intervention.

- (13) No intervention under subsection (10) of this section shall continue beyond such period as may be prescribed by an Act of the National Assembly unless approved by resolution of the National Assembly in the manner prescribed by that Act.
- (14) The legality, scope, duration and conduct of an intervention under this section shall be subject to judicial review, and no intervention shall dissolve a State Police Service or suspend the elected institutions of a State except in accordance with this Constitution.
- (15) Whenever and wherever an intervention under subsection (10) of this section is invoked, the State Police Service shall be subordinated to the Federal Police Service until after the expiration of the situation that warranted the intervention.”

17. Substitute for section 215 of the Principal Act, new section “215” —

Substitution for
section 215

“215. Appointment, command, directions and tenure

- (1) The Federal Police Service shall be headed by an Inspector-General of Police appointed by the President on the advice of the National Police Council, subject to confirmation by the Senate and to such qualifications as may be prescribed by an Act of the National Assembly.
- (2) The Federal Police Service shall be under the command of the Inspector-General of Police, including contingents of the Federal Police Service stationed in a State subject to this Constitution and any Act of the National Assembly.
- (3) The President, or such Minister of the Government of the Federation as the President may authorise, may give lawful directions in writing, being directions of general policy, to the Inspector-General of Police with respect to the maintenance and securing of public safety and public order.
- (4) The Federal Police contingent stationed in a state shall be headed by a Commissioner of Police who shall receive orders from the Inspector General of Police or any other officer authorised by him and as provided by an Act of the National Assembly.
- (5) A State Police Service shall be headed by a Commander of Police of the State appointed by the Governor of the State on the recommendation of the National Police Council, subject to confirmation by the House of Assembly of the State and to such qualifications and national minimum standards as may be prescribed by an Act of the National Assembly.

- (6) A State Police Service shall be under the command of the Commander of Police of the State, subject to this Constitution, an Act of the National Assembly, a Law of the House of Assembly of the State and any lawful federal intervention under section 214 of this Constitution.
- (7) The Governor of a State, or such Commissioner of the Government of the State as the Governor may authorise, may give lawful directions in writing, being directions of general policy, to the Commander of Police of the State with respect to the maintenance and securing of public safety and public order in the State.
- (8) No direction under this section shall require the arrest, detention, investigation, non-investigation, deployment or use of force against any named person, political party, association or class of persons except in accordance with law, or require a police service or any member of a police service to act unlawfully, violate fundamental rights, suppress lawful political activity, discriminate against any person or group, or enforce the law for a partisan, ethnic, religious, sectional or personal purpose.
- (9) The Inspector-General of Police or a Commander of Police of a State may request the appropriate Police Service Commission to review any directive which that officer considers unlawful or inconsistent with national minimum standards, and nothing in this subsection shall oust the jurisdiction of a court.
- (10) The Inspector-General of Police shall not be suspended or removed except for stated cause, in accordance with a fair hearing, on the recommendation of the National Police Council and subject to approval by a resolution supported by not less than two-thirds majority of the Senate.
- (11) A Commander of Police of a State shall not be suspended or removed except for stated cause, in accordance with a fair hearing, on the recommendation of the National Police Council and subject to approval by a resolution supported by not less than two-thirds majority of members of the House of Assembly of the State.”

18. Substitute for section 216 of the Principal Act, new section “216” —

Substitution for
section 216

“216. National policing standards, oversight and accountability

- (1) The National Assembly shall by an Act prescribe national minimum standards applicable to the Federal Police Service and every State Police Service, including standards on recruitment, vetting, training, certification, appointment, promotion, discipline, conduct, use of force, firearms, custody, complaints, criminal information, inter-governmental cooperation, public reporting and accountability.
- (2) A Law of a House of Assembly may prescribe standards for a State Police Service that are higher than or additional to national minimum standards but shall not derogate from or fall below those standards.
- (3) An Act of the National Assembly shall provide for independent arrangements for policing standards, inspection, certification, complaints, reporting, criminal information systems, data sharing, federal intervention, grants and accountability, and may confer functions for those purposes on an existing body or a body established by that Act.
- (4) Members of the Federal Police Service and of a State Police Service may bear only such arms, ammunition and equipment as may be authorised by an Act of the National Assembly, and every use of force by a police service shall be lawful, necessary, proportionate and accountable.”
